Laguna Beach Resort, Utila February 18-25, 2012

Utila sits on top of the second largest fringing coral reef in the world making Laguna Beach a diver's paradise. The outer banks are home to dolphin and more than the occasional whale shark. As well as the conditions that make for great diving — warm, translucent water, good weather, and tropical landscapes — which also make for a terrific Caribbean vacation. You'll find great diving and relaxing moments at the Laguna Beach Resort!

Laguna Beach Resort is ideally located on a lushly landscaped, private peninsula on the south central section of the tiny island of Utila. This remote, intimate property's natural wood design portrays a rustically elegant setting for the perfect island getaway.

The resort consists of 13 bungalow style accommodations each set over a tranquil mangrove lagoon accommodating a total of 36 guests as well as a spacious private beach house overlooking the clear waters of the Caribbean sea. The Beach House has two bedrooms, accommodating four guests, which is perfect for vacationing couples or a family getaway.

Laguna Beach's ocean side restaurant offers three buffet style meals daily. This beautifully designed building has a center bar and upstairs entertainment room with a pool table and satellite T.V. Relax with a cocktail after dinner on the restaurant's deck perfect for stargazing.

Utila offers a variety of diving in over 100 dive sites around the island. Following are some of Laguna Beach Resort's favorites beginning with its spectacular shore dive. The reef is located approximately 150 yards from the Resort beach. The dive begins with a wall dive with drops from 15 to 100 feet, featuring bluebell tunicates, stingrays, and an abundance of juveniles due to the proximity to the mangrove lagoon.
